

Electrical Fault Finding Rig

Designed in partnership with British Energy

This rig has been designed to aid in the training of apprentices and technicians in fault finding skills and is a fully flexible unit which can be updated and added to, to develop further training programs.

The rig is built using the actual components used onsite to ensure a realistic training program can be delivered.